

THE BEST OF QUEENSLAND

MORE than 400,000 people from city and country will come together from August 9 to 18 to celebrate and experience the best of Queensland.

Just 1.6km from the Brisbane CBD, the Ekka features more than 10,000 animals, 23,000 competition entries, a smorgasbord of award-winning food and wine, and hours of free family entertainment.

This year the RNA welcomes new president David Thomas to the helm of the show and one of his first projects to oversee has been the historic $2.9 billion 15-year RNA Showgrounds regeneration project.

He said the success of last year's show demonstrated how the state's largest annual event can operate seamlessly throughout the regeneration project.

"The 2012 Ekka will feature some of the nation's biggest competitions, including Australia's largest annual thoroughbred competition and the world's most comprehensive stud beef competition of its kind.

"The show continually expands and evolves – from the 1876 show that featured 1700 entries and two alpacas to more than 20,000 entries and an entire alpaca fleece competition in 2011. A quintessential Queensland experience, the Ekka forms a rich part of the state's social and cultural heritage."

Visitors to Ekka 2012 will be some of the first to walk through the newly transformed Royal International Convention Centre, previously known as the Industrial Pavilion, with the ground floor back in use for the show.

The Ekka's largest competition, the Royal Queensland Dog Show, will be housed in this exhibition space, together with the Agricultural Hall and horticulture exhibits.

It will also be home to a new attraction for green thumbs – the Garden Platform – which will feature daily gardening tips, activities and cooking demonstrations.

"It is wonderful to see the enthusiasm and hard work the 2011 competitors displayed, and we're excited about what lies ahead for this year's Ekka," Mr Thomas said. – Picture: RNA.
